

Foundations of Tribal Leadership

Thursday, August 22, 2013

Dinner Meeting, 6:00 – 9:00 pm

Courtyard Marriott, Culver City

Every organization and company is a tribe, or a network of tribes. A tribe is a group of 20 to 150 people that form naturally, in which everyone knows everyone else, or at least knows of them.

In this highly interactive session, Carrie Kish shows leaders how to upgrade their organization one tribe at a time based on Dave Logan's New York Times #1 Best Selling Book, Tribal Leadership.

The result of this type of upgrading is unprecedented collaboration and impact. Participants will leave with the ability to assess their workplace tribes and upgrade each to their most effective potential. The result is industry-leading productivity, innovation, collaboration, and job satisfaction.

Dr. Logan, the author of Tribal Leadership, is also founder and CEO of CultureSync and a professor of the Marshall School of Business at USC since 1996.

In this session, you will ...

- Learn to Identify the Five Stages of Culture
- Assess Your Organization's or Your Team's Culture
- Learn Simple and Effective Strategies for Upgrading Culture
- Identify the Core Values and Shared Values of Your Organization or Team

Carrie Kish is a Senior Consultant and the Director of Business Development for CultureSync, a management consulting firm specializing in cultural change, executive coaching, and strategy.
