In the world of hacking and phishing, there are many stories that range from ordinary theft of emptying bank accounts to slightly more unusual attacks, such as those shown in Superman 3 or Office Space movies -- the clever scheme to steal micro payments from huge numbers of transactions to unnoticeably become rich quick.

But, what about cybercrime in the real world?

More recently, there was the story of Michael Largent, stealing some $50,000 a few pennies at a time. Largent actually employed a massive fraud scheme to trick Google Checkout and online brokers like E-trade and Schwab to send him the sum, a few cents at a time.

In this presentation, we will look at the clever side of cybercrime and safeguards you need in place now. Real-world examples, case studies, events and protection. This information will provide a clearer view of cybercrime and make you better at securing your world from the clever, savvy vector.

Presenter:

Kelly Fitzgerald
Sr. Principal Cyber Security Analyst
Veritas (formerly Symantec Corporation)

Kelly has a BS in Computer Science from CSUSB. She was awarded a full academic Scholarship from the National Science Foundation. In her senior year, she took a Job at Evident Data in computer forensics where she fell in love with the dark side.
