Overcoming Adversity and Creatively Managing Project Change

The world is undergoing massive change. In times like these, many companies are locking down and cutting investments. Recent Safer at Home directives are rapidly forcing cultural change – an evolution to a virtual workplace.

But critical projects and operations must continue. Not dealing effectively with change can reduce productivity and quality of work. Nothing is as important to the survival of your organization as adapting to change.

Managing perceptions – and stakeholder expectations - is a key factor. Defining your approach to change in detail, and as early as possible, then communicating updates regularly is critical to success.

Technology tools for remote meetings and collaboration are critical enablers in these unprecedented times.

This presentation will offer ideas for leading through adversity, weathering the storm and providing value to stakeholders while working with limited resources. How to apply your creativity, with strategies that can be adapted to any company culture irrespective of outside stressors. Managers, Project Managers, Analysts, and Product Owners will come away with new ideas to approach project management, stakeholder expectations and provide management with the successful deliverables they expect.

Advance registration for the ZOOM meeting is required. Go to our LinkedIn Events page at

About our Speaker

Hollie Choi, Former Executive Director, IT for Twentieth Century Fox

As the owner for Fox's cornerstone Intellectual Property Management platform, Hollie led the digital transformation to Salesforce and AWS. When Fox was sold to Disney last year, she designed a framework and developed the roadmap for how the company would merge its intellectual property platforms. Hollie is dedicated to building and empowering teams who work together so well that they consistently deliver what others think is impossible. She was a founding member of Women @ Fox as well as 21stCentury Fox's Women in Technology. She served on the Board of Directors for the Foundation at Pierce College which supports a variety of partnerships and alliances within the community.
